Friday Night Dinner Feature Teacher Lecture: Rescue Me! with Julia McLeod

Julia says, "There's nothing I like more than incorporating old and neglected materials into new quilts, bringing them out of years of storage and into the light of day. It saddens me to find a stack of vintage quilt blocks in a thrift shop or yard sale that were never made into a quilt. I love old table linens—but who uses them any more? Textile treasures from far away countries often languish in a drawer, looking out of place once we've brought them home, and thrift shop clothing can be made of lovely material but for various reasons, is unwearable. I say, Reach for your scissors and rescue these fabulous fabrics! Follow several projects from salvaged materials through to finished quilts and learn about the techniques I use to tame unusual textiles."
